

Try again once you are ready.

Required to pass: 80% or higher

You can retake this quiz up to 3 times every 8 hours.

Back to Week 3

Retake

1. Use of a package management system (Select all true statements):

0 / 1 point

Makes updating slow, as one always has to recompile from source

This should not be selected

This is only true for Gentoo, other Linux distributions do it for the end user if necessary

Simplifies upgrade and update of individual software packages, as well as the system

This should be selected

Makes removing software difficult

Un-selected is correct

Is rapidly going obsolete, as disk space becomes larger and cheaper

Un-selected is correct

2. Which of the following distributions use the RPM package management system (Select all answers that apply)?

0 / 1 point

Gentoo

This should not be selected

Gentoo uses portage/emerge for package management

Ubuntu

Un-selected is correct

SUSE

This should be selected

Debian

Un-selected is correct

Red Hat

This should be selected

CentOS

This should be selected

Fedora

This should be selected

3. Which of the following distributions use the APT (dpkg) package management system (Select all answers that apply)?

0 / 1 point

Gentoo

This should not be selected

Gentoo uses Portage/Emerge for package management

Debian

This should be selected

CentOS

Un-selected is correct

Ubuntu

This should be selected

SUSE

Un-selected is correct

Linux Mint

This should be selected

Red Hat

Un-selected is correct

4. With RPM, all information to configure, compile and install is contained in:

0 / 1 point

The build file

The spec file

The rpm manifest

The yum file

This should not be selected

There is no such relevant file

5. Which of the following statements are true (Select all answers that apply)?

0 / 1 point

The source package contains multiple files in RPM-based systems

Un-selected is correct

The source package contains one file in Debian-based systems

This should not be selected

The source package contains several files

The source package contains one file in RPM-based systems

This should be selected

The source package contains multiple files in Debian-based systems

This should be selected

